In USA, Chamberlain and Amazon have teamed up to offer in garage delivery! Does Australia need to gear up for this service initiative?

ILLINOIS - Chamberlain Group (CGI) and Amazon recently announced they are joining forces to introduce the next stage of secure, convenient package delivery with Key for Garage. Eligible Prime members will soon be able to choose in-garage delivery from Amazon, increasing peace of mind that their packages will be delivered securely. Additionally, any customer with a myQ-connected garage door opener will be able to monitor and control their garage door from anywhere via the Key app. Only CGI products, including myQ

-connected LiftMaster garage door openers and accessories, will enable Key for Garage.

Key for Garage is made possible by integrating Key with CGI's proprietary myQconnected technology. Customers with a myQconnected garage door opener at home can enable access by linking their Amazon and myQ accounts in the Key app. Otherwise, customers can purchase one of two Key for Garage Kits. One allows customers to add connectivity to their existing garage door opener with the myQ Smart Garage Hub. The second, includes a myQ-connected Chamberlain or LiftMaster Wi-Fi garage door opener. To see garage activity, customers can add an Amazon Cloud Cam to either kit for live view and entry/exit clips.

Once the Key for Garage Kit is installed, customers simply download the Key app and follow the steps to sync it with the myQ Smart Garage Hub or garage door opener. myQ also enables customers to monitor access and control their garage door from anywhere and get realtime notifications whenever someone comes and goes, right from the Key app.

Prime members who live in one of 37 cities and surrounding areas will be able to choose "In garage delivery" at checkout when they shop on Amazon.com. On delivery day, customers receive notifications via the Key app during every step of the delivery process, from when the package is en-route, to when the garage door opens for the driver to deliver the package and then securely closes. Customers with a Cloud Cam can also choose to watch their delivery occur in real-time.

Before the garage door opens, Amazon verifies that the correct driver is at the right address through an encrypted authentication process. Once this process is successfully completed, the door opens, and the driver will not move on to their next delivery until the garage door closes.

"A self-contained extension of the home, the garage offers a convenient destination for packages that solves current delivery hurdles such as potential theft and missed deliveries. We are proud to collaborate with Amazon on this gamechanging in-garage delivery initiative," said Jeff Meredith, CGI president and chief operating officer. "LiftMaster Dealers will directly benefit from Key for Garage with increased opportunities to sell to Prime members eager to purchase product to enable in-garage delivery."

Key by Amazon puts security, convenience, and control in the hands of home and business owners. In addition to Key for Garage, Key for Home and Key for Car are also available.

Key for Garage will be available in Q2 2019.

A 10-year-old boy who was nearly crushed under an industrial garage door was saved by his heroic siblings. [from 2GB website 10/4/2019]

Samuel Wiley was at the local shops in Davidson with his family when he tried to slip under the door leading to the car park.

Instead, he became trapped and was moments from being crushed to death when his quick-thinking siblings acted.

Seven-year-old sister Jessica used a pole she found on the floor to push a button that was too high up for her to reach.

The button immediately opened the door, and older brother William stood in front of the sensor to stop it from coming back down.

Samuel avoided serious injury but suffered a haemorrhage behind one eye.

His mum Rebecca was amazed by her daughter's quick thinking.
